

Cell crawling without adhesion

Christian Schmeiser, University of Vienna, Austria

Leukocytes are able to crawl in confined environments even in the absence of adhesion sites or without adhesion molecules. A modeling approach for this phenomenon, based on cortical flow, will be presented.